

IN THE ABSTRACT

Please replace the current abstract with the following:

--A voice recognition system and method for interactively gathering information to generate a document, form, or application. An applicant using a remote device to establish a voice connection with the system over a communication network provides verbal responses to a plurality of verbal questions generated by the system. The system stores and converts the verbal responses to a textual document, such as a form or application.--